Giclée Art Reproductions by L. Galen Larson
A Giclée (pronounced zhe-Clay) refers to both a category of collectible fine art similar to lithographs and serigraphs, as well as, a type of digitally created fine art print. Not any digital print is a Giclée however, only digital prints that are created on special high resolution printers utilizing archival links. Giclée's are laboratory rated to provide several decades, if not a century or more of lasting print quality. The archival links and papers selected by Larson are rated up to 200 years, but it must be noted, however, that these links have not been existence long enough to confirm the accuracy of this rating.
